1.Read the dataset

```
In [2]: df = pd.read_csv('disaster_tweets_data(DS).csv',encoding='latin1')
df.head()
```

```
Out[2]:
```

2.Remove handle null values (if any).

```
In [5]: df.isnull().sum()
```

```
Out[5]: tweets    0
target        0
dtype: int64
```

Plotting Charts

```
In [6]: count_of_1 = df['target'].value_counts().get(1)
print(count_of_1)

count_of_0 = df['target'].value_counts().get(0)
print(count_of_0)

```

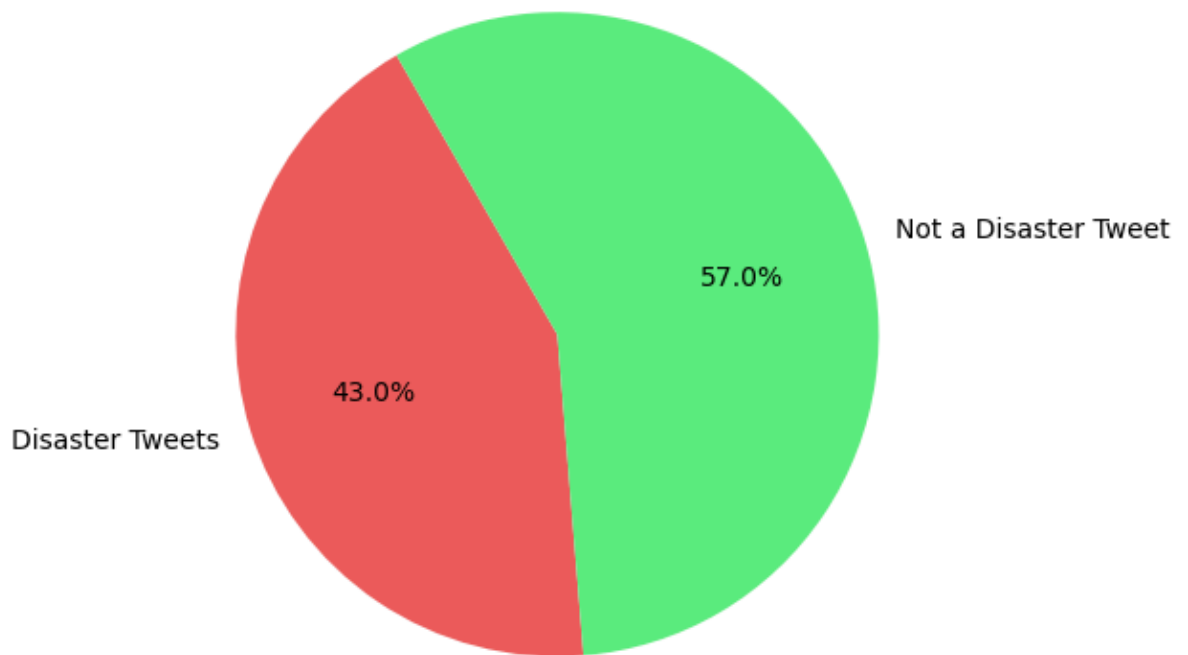

```
In [7]: labels= 'Disaster Tweets', 'Not a Disaster Tweet' sizes=[count_of_1,count_of_0]
```

```

colors=['#ED5E5C','#5CED7D']
plt.pie(sizes, labels=labels, colors=colors, autopct='%1.1f%%', startangle=120)
plt.axis('equal') plt.show()

```

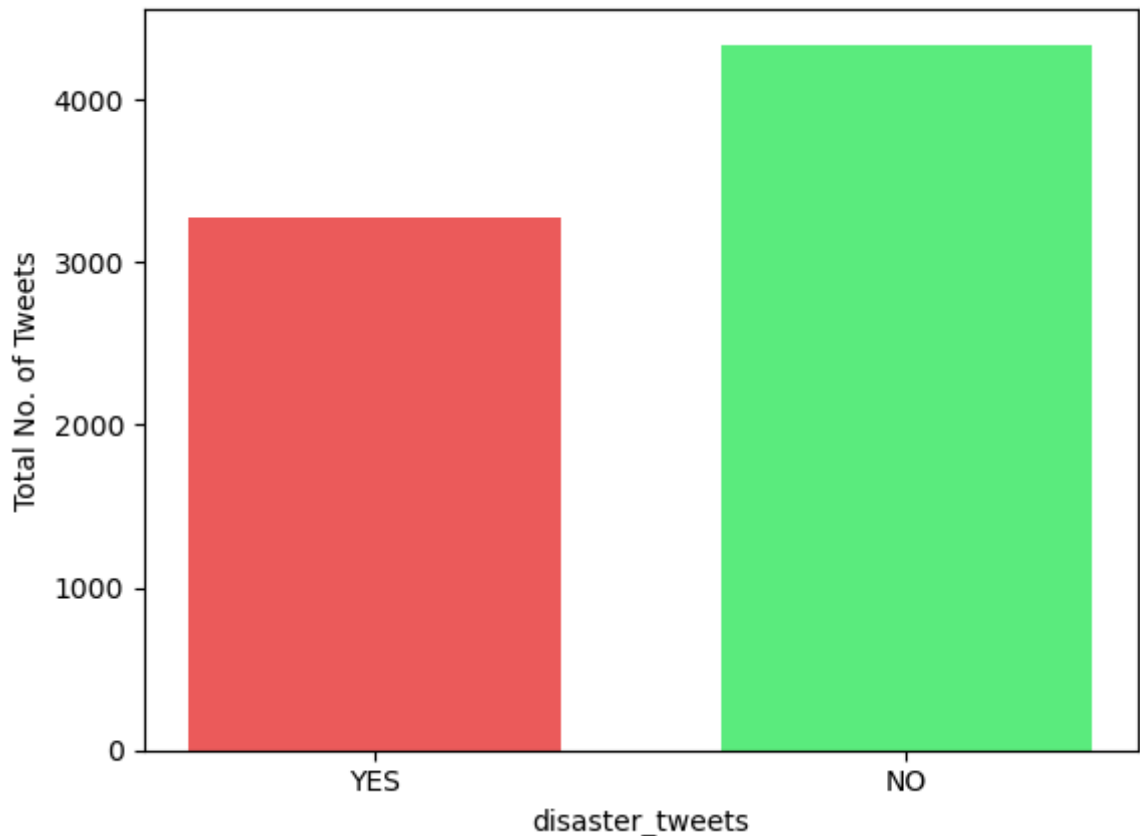

Based on the information provided by the pie chart, it appears that approximately 43% of the tweets in the dataset are related to disasters, while the remaining 57% are not. Given the relatively small difference between the proportions of disaster and non-disaster tweets, it suggests that there may not be a significant imbalance in the dataset. Therefore, there may be no immediate need for techniques such as undersampling or oversampling to address class imbalance.

In [8]: disaster_tweets= ['YES', 'NO']
values= [count_of_1, count_of_0]
colors=['#ED5E5C','#5CED7D']
plt.bar(disaster_tweets, values, color=colors, width=0.7)
plt.xlabel('disaster_tweets')
plt.ylabel('Total No. of Tweets')
plt.show()

```

3.Preprocess the disaster tweets data:

from nltk.corpus import stopwords
from nltk import word_tokenize
from nltk.stem import WordNetLemmatizer import re
```

```
In [10]: sw = stopwords.words("English")
print(sw)

8. Report the model with the best accuracy.

"In conclusion, while evaluating the performance of our classification models, we observed that KNN Classification exhibited the lowest accuracy at 60%, prompting its exclusion from further consideration. Both Multinomial Naïve Bayes Classification and Logistic Regression demonstrated comparable accuracies of 81%. However, Logistic Regression displayed a notable disparity between its high train score of 97% and its slightly lower test score of 80%, indicating a potential risk of overfitting. Consequently, we opted to utilize Multinomial Naïve Bayes Classification due to its stable performance and absence of overfitting concerns."
